Shopping in Luton by Lek Boonlert

Article published on November 29th 2011 | Destinations

When you stay in a Luton hotel, you will be ideally situated to take advantage of some great shopping opportunities in this busy and vibrant town, located right next to the airport.

There are numerous shopping outlets situated around the streets of Luton, from popular high street names to boutiques specialising in designer brands.

As in many modern, thriving towns, the best range of shopping opportunities are gathered under one roof, in Lutonâ€™s case The Mall Arndale Shopping Centre.  This is the main shopping centre in the county and is located right in the centre of town.  It contains a great selection of familiar names from the high street as well as numerous independent stores and small outlets, and is open from 9am to 6pm.

If you prefer to avoid large modern centres such as The Mall and Hatters Way Retail Park, and upmarket shops such as River Island and Delphine Alexander, you could always head for Luton Market.  Shopping in a market is great fun and becoming increasingly popular, and you can find a range of fresh foodstuffs at a fraction of the price the shops charge, and some great bargains to be had.

However, away from the market and shopping centres, there are plenty of excellent independent shops dotted around Luton.  The Swimshop in Dencora Way, for example, is the largest swim specialist in Europe, providing everything a swimmer needs for the enjoyment of his or her hobby.

Come to Luton and experience some of the best shopping to be had anywhere in England, and with plenty of cafes and bars to relax in during your shopping trip, it is an ideal location for all.
