The social culture of the present day of cities like Seattle, has hit hard on the married lives of the couple. The aspiration to climb the ladders of success, office stress, extra martial flings have all led to distressed couples, who at verge of their mutual quarrels wish to opt for divorce. Though it is not a good option, as it breaks years of relationship and families, it is the safest way where the individuals can have their independence, without having any further disagreements. In such case scenarios, the Divorce Attorney Seattle is consulted to such couples to find a safe exit from their present married lives.

Seeking for divorce is an easy solution present in front of estranged couples who wish to end a conflicting married life. But it brings along hard times for the children of such couple. The Seattle Divorce Attorney consults the couple into such matters by providing their experienced guidance and assistance to the applicant. They formulate strategies to file the petition for such family matters.

Eagle Law Offices, P.S. Law Firm, Seattle, Washington is a firm which the individuals consult in case a divorce is needed. The disputing couples are consulted by the attorney for making a possible patch-up between them, before being divorced. If, however, the divorce is imminent, then a few things are confirmed like:

1. If the marriage was legal and had been done following the rites and rituals of the community and religion of the couple
2. The couples are a resident of Washington. If, in any case, one of the spouses belongs to the military, he/she has agreed to be in the city for a minimum of 90 days after the filing and serving of Petition of Dissolution.
3. There is a mutual discord, of which either one or both of the spouses are in disagreement with.
4. The applicant for divorce has agreed to serve a Summon and Petition for Dissolution to their spouse.
5. The applicant a period of 90 days must pass after the filing and serving of the Petition for Dissolution.

The Seattle Divorce Lawyer helps the applicant in representing the interest of the client for the case, along with providing assistance in preparation of required documents, and the requirements of the client to the court. The legal advices provided to the clients are supported by an experience of 18 years. The Divorce Lawyer Seattle, based on such experience also provides the option of legal separation to the estranged couple, which is another solution apart from having the dissolution of the marriage.

The procedure followed for filing a petition for legal separation is similar to that of a normal divorce. At times, due to pressure surmounted by the community on the basis of ethics and religion, the couples opt for the legal separation than complete marriage dissolution. This is technically the same as a divorce where the couple have to live separately. None of the spouses, however, could marry until a complete divorce is given by the court. The court, however, has to interfere and provides a divorce to the couple, if even this separation doesn't seem to work.
