The green carpet of Cairns consists of mangrove, rainforest and swaying leaves of sugar cane, and the dark waters wending its way through a flow it is not country, but the life blood of mangroves, mud, and crocodiles inhabiting brackish water out of its way to the Pacific Ocean.

The ocean is full of sandy golden beach and, as a passenger plane, you can see the green beans in shallow water and cobalt blue of the deep waters beyond. Unless the hurricane season, the movement of the sea is smooth, because it is not surfing beaches you are looking. Coastline of the city is protected by the structure of the Great Barrier Reef, which winds up to Bundaberg, about 1400 km south. Here you will only find dark blue sea.

While the mountains of your plane goes through the green close, in the distance, bluish leaves because of blue / green celebrities Jobs Australia, something that will get plenty of opportunity see close to ground.

Landing in Cairns is a delight rough that European tourists can appreciate the rest of your life travelling. After disembarking from his plane - an aircraft or much smaller if you are flying into the country from anywhere other than South Australia - when the hit hits your eyes direct from the sun so obvious that you become almost blind, and the temperature and humidity so high, leave wet clothes and your face glistening with sweat, even before entering the airport.

Heat, of course, largely because they are not far from Ecuador, but things are not helped by the fact that often actually walk down the runway to get to the terminal - land bridges are thin on the ground here. Inside, the airport experience is the same as anywhere else, but the queues are shorter and more relaxed staff because Cairns are just quiet. You can take Cairns coach charters and move into the city.

It is also sparsely populated. With a population of the city of 130,000 people and its land area consists of sparsely populated rural areas, Cairns makes guests feel at home off the road wherever they go in the Cairns region.

Open spaces are a reality here. There are hardly any people on the beaches, the streets are far from crowded, the parks are almost empty and the roads are ordered. Hire Cairns bus charters to move around the city. Cairns is a roaring tourism industry for its many beautiful places.

So, when the roar of the Cairns airport either by bus or car, you know what is before you: a rich experience in vivid colours of the Daintree rainforest in the north, the ocean to the east, fields of sugar cane and bananas in the south, and the green hills of the Atherton Tablelands in western side.

When you land at Cairns International Airport, the first thing that hits you is the humidity and tropical heat incredible. After coming out from the airport you can take Cairns coach transfers which you have booked earlier and hid to your straight to the hotel which you had booked all ready a few days earlier.
