Often while setting up a new house, people get overwhelmed deciding on the right furniture. The tension is even greater when working on a tight budget. When you rent a new space instead of buying it, it's not wise to spend a lot of money on furniture, simply because you never know if your present sofa will be the right size in the next place, you move to in future. Essentially leather or faux leather covered sacks, sacks; giant bean bags offer the perfect blend of comfort and style. They are great for informal living rooms and have the advantage of easy mobility, so you don't have to block off a specific area in the room to accommodate them.

Due to the growing popularity of giant bean bags as a choice for furniture, more and more home decor stores and retail chains now, have them on offer. These come in a variety of colours, prints and sizes. Some stores even offer customised designs so you can have a piece of furniture that is truly unique.

A simple yet great way of decorating a small living room area is by putting in two giant bean bags in the room, a low table in between the two, a knitted or stitched rug or a lamp and an interesting floor lamp. This creates the ideal ambience for lounging and you can be rest assured that your guests will feel comfortable and relaxed just being there.

Some giant bean bags, of course depending on their size, can even accommodate a sleeping child or adult of petite frame. So if you suddenly find that one of your guests wants to sleep over, you have a great sleeping arrangement for him. If your guest is an adult of medium to large build, then all you need to do is position a couple of floor cushions next to the bag so there's room to stretch out one's legs.
