Article published on February 11th 2012 | Business

Got something large and heavy that you need to ship somewhere? Did the Post Office guy laugh out loud when you asked him about mailing it? What are you supposed to do? Who are you supposed to get? Freight Guru Company has expanded their Heavy Freight Shipping services to help cover the increasing demand to move large shipments. Heavy Freight Shipping serves the needs of customers looking to ship specialized loads that are large in dimensions, heavy in weight, or both. The most common types of heavy freight shipments are construction equipment like excavators or dump trucks but isn't limited to just those. We offer full shipping services for commercial and industrial companies and can help to ensure your cargo arrives to its destination safely and in a timely fashion.

Qualities of a Good Shipping Company

Manufacturers and shippers, have only two goals, the goods have to arrive at their destination in the same condition they left the manufacturer, and they have to arrive on time. An over 90% safe and on-time delivery record will almost guarantee the carrier more business, as well as a large number of repeat customers. Cost and insurance coverage are other factors that should be addressed first in any negotiation. It takes a certain type of organization to handle oversized and heavy freight shipments. FreightGuru has the experience and knowledge of specialized Heavy freight shipping needed for your oversized shipment. We handle mining processing plants, water and wastewater treatment plants, aluminum can lines, cooling towers as well as various other manufactured cargoes and heavy equipment operations throughout the world.

Freight Guru Can Handle Almost Anything You Need To Ship!

With only a very few exceptions – lions, tigers, bears, redwood trees, for example - Freight Guru can handle almost anything you need to ship.
