Property and RV Park Owners: Reasons to Rent Your Real Estate Units to Traveling Contractors! by Traveling Contractor

Article published on July 24th 2012 | Business

Are you a rental property owner with some spare units that you are looking to rent out? Have you experienced tenants that are noisy, disrespectful or otherwise bothersome and now you want some more steady business with less risk? If you have answered yes to these problems, then signing up with our program to list your units for sale is a safer and more profitable avenue to increasing your bottom line.

The Traveling Contractor offers many attractive features that will certainly make your listing worth your time and increase your profitability. We are one of, if not the, fastest growing online directories that serve and actively target the lodging and temporary living needs of traveling contractors. We do not micro-manage your business; all we do is charge you a nominal fee for the opportunity to list your property while there is direct and open communication between you and your potential renter. There are no hidden fees, charges, etc. Your advertisements will be seen nationwide in The Traveling Contractor's marketing and promotional materials.

We also offer property and RV park owners like yourself many efficient and effective tools to enable you to select the right tenant the first and every time. Since The Traveling Contractor values every customer's time like our own, the owner of The Traveling Contractor contacts every potential property or RV park owner to discuss how this website can be custom tailored and utilized to maximize every listing customer's exposure and business. Every customer is entitled to one free month to list their property which comes with one free photo to give potential renters an overview of your property. The first month's free subscription includes a full property description and full contact information. The free, no-risk trial enables you to get a feel and see if it is something you would be interested in signing up for the long-term.

In addition to our direct marketing tools, there are many added indirect marketing bonuses that we offer you to help you maximize your business. You are still able to screen your potential tenants discreetly and efficiently with our no sight unseen third party reservations sent directly to you, the property owner. You are able to perform some goodwill and be in God's good graces by being able to have places of worship in your community advertised free of charge on our website. Once you sign up, you and your first tenant secured through this website will receive a complimentary gift as a gesture of our goodwill which will certainly make a great first impression for your guest. Your business can benefit from our internal free rating system that enables past customers to rate their experience with your company. You will be able to build your business and make it easier and easier to beat out the competition as you impress your customers!

The Traveling Contractor is the perfect company to help you, a property or RV park owner, expand and grow your company efficiently and through a low cost manner. We are here to help you through every step, evidenced by our personal call from the company's owner and wide variety of advertising options. We look forward to speaking with you learning how we can help you out with your rental property business.
