

Article Side

Smith and Warren badges are the finishing touch to any police uniform by Thomasgalvin

Article published on January 3rd 2012 | Business

When it comes to a police uniform, the finishing touch of any of the various items worn by a law enforcement officer is the police badge. Most individuals take great pride when wearing their badge and if there was one manufacturer that takes as much pride in producing them as the officer wearing them, it would be Smith and Warren badges which are manufactured out of New York. The company has become the fastest growing because of several reasons. First, Smith and Warren badges are produced in 3 to 4 weeks which is much faster than other makers which normally produce in 6 to 8 weeks. Second, the company's products which are of the highest quality offers a 100% lifetime warranty. Lastly, the company's offers its high quality at the most affordable pricing in the industry which is becoming increasingly important considering the shrinking municipal, state and federal budgets in the last few years.

Most police uniform companies represent at least 1 badge company to fully cater to their customers needs and Smith and Warren badges has now introduced its Visual Badge which is an online program to fully see a badge before ordering with all specific customizations that are required. Dealers can easily employ Visual Badge program directly on their website and this makes the custom process of ordering much easier and gives the buyer confidence that they know what they will receive. In addition to be able to choose from approximately over 1000 different badge models, the ordering options include finishes, backing choices, engraving color and font, and center seal options. If the available models in existence don't meet requirements, departments and agencies have the ability to completely design a badge from scratch with low minimum and one time metal die charges that range from under $100 to $300. A completely custom design from scratch can take 6 to 8 weeks or longer depending on customer approval speed as opposed to ordering an available model which takes 3 to 4 weeks.

National police uniform companies and providers such as Galls, Quartermaster, INTAPOL and Police Equipment Depot all represent Smith & Warren badges and can assist in your ordering process or answer any questions regarding your needs. After researching, both INTAPOL and Police Equipment Depot offer more affordable pricing on badges than the others and in today's economic environment, this has become increasingly important. All of these companies also offer all the auxiliary items that compliment badges such as leather badge wallets, badge holder, neck chains, and police hats that just don't look correct without their badge on them. Also, it should be noted that besides just catering to police, Smith and Warren also manufactures badges for fire, EMT, and security. Further the company also makes a wide variety of nameplates and collar brass that also are produced in 3 to 4 weeks. When looking at the other manufacturers such as Blackington, Sun Badge and others, the one company that shined the brightest in all areas is Smith and Warren.

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/smith-and-warren-badges-are-the-finishing-touch-to-any-police-uniform.htm> - Article Side

Thomasgalvin - About Author:

Find a Smith and Warren Badges and a Police Uniform related information at a Policeequipmentdepot.com

Article Keywords:
smith and warren badges, police uniform

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!