Mentions the word Tents to most people and theyâ€™ll think about camping expeditions to a variety of outdoor locations where you simply turn up and pitch your tent where you like. Tents are brilliant for budget holidays they are simple to erect features that keep you protected from the outside elements as you sleep under the stars for a night or more. Choose Tents by style or size and theyâ€™ll provide you with many years of service you should be able to enjoy numerous camping trips once you have bought a tent that suits your needs.

Tents are great for camping but there are various other ways you can use these features, Marquees for example are very popular at the moment.

Marquees are fabulous for weddings

If you said you were using Tents for your wedding celebrations people might look at you a little funny. Tell them you are celebrating in a marquee though and people forget this is actually a posh tent. Marquees are temporary structures just like Tents that can be erected for a special occasion then disassembled afterwards in hardly any time. Marquees can be erected on grass and other types of soft ground using a peg and pole system, unlike Tents through framed versions are also available that can be erected on hard ground too.

Okay that covers Marquees but surely there must be other uses for Tents in everyday life?

Using Tents in emergencies

Tents are great for camping and Marquees are perfect for weddings and other outdoor celebrations but how else can you use temporary PVC or canvas structures? Actually Tents are really handy to use for emergency situations they make brilliant types of temporary accommodation and you can use them as field hospitals as well. Plus Tents are often used in disasters and charities use them as relief shelters when they hand out provisions or medical aid to people in need.

Thereâ€™s more to Tents than first meets the eye the next time you go to a circus or attend a village function will you be seated or stood under a large canvas structure
