Rohan is popular for his naughty activities. Everybody, starting from his parents to his teachers as well as the neighbors always keeps on complaining about his activities. He does not even leave any chance to disturb his neighbors either. Since I am one of his already disturbed neighbors, I often get to listen to his father shouting on him “Rohan stop getting into my nerves, I am fed up with these complaints against you.” Since the past few days I have noticed a few changes in Rohan. He is not the same boy with an invisible monkey tail.

Rohan has changed a lot. I asked his father what the matter was. His father replied that he has made Rohan to do meditation and with the help of this only the sudden changes have come in Rohan and he has become calm. It was unbelievable to see Rohan like this. On the other hand, I was convinced that meditation really works even on children.

We think meditation is basically meant for adults, but we are wrong in our thoughts. Even children do meditation and the best part is that it works on them better. In fact, it is valuable to teach children meditation as they can get much benefit from being taught it. With the help of meditation your child will be able to lead a stress free life. Meditation is helpful for the children in many ways such as, it creates a sense of being relaxed, receptive and present in your kid’s mind which is also called as alpha state.

All the senses such as sound, sight, touching and feeling gets improved. It also helps the kids to keep their mind calm. Nonetheless, it also helps to boost up the confidence level of children. On the other hand, it is one of the hard jobs to help the children to meditate. Well, there is a way out for this too, but the session of meditation can be effective if you yourself know the “mantra” of meditation. In the initial days, do not make your child feel that it is something like school homework. Make it a fun learning. When you sit for meditation, ask your child to follow you and do everything that you do. When they are done with it, ask them their experience. It helps them to take their interest on it more. Also, try to make it a routine work for your child.
