How many times have you looked at someone else and wondered how you too could have hair like that? We cannot change the way our hair strands are predisposed to grow due to the genetics factor. We can, however, take care of our hair using some innovative products and keep hair fall at bay. With some really effective hair regrowth products currently available, there is absolutely no reason to worry any longer.

However, one must keep in mind that some amount of hair loss is natural. In the normal course of hair growth, a person would lose around 80 to 150 hair strands daily. One can start using the special hair regrowth products when hair fall is more than this.

According to a recent survey, approximately 35 million men and 21 million women in the United States alone have experienced this problem.

But worrying won't help. What will help is taking some proactive steps in dealing with the problem. Leading providers in the cosmetics and pharmaceutical industry have taken it upon themselves to address this issue. And the results are there for everyone to see.

Sulfate free shampoos: One category of products that diminish your hair fall quite significantly is the sulfate free shampoos. Sulfates are nothing but cleaning agents which are there in most shampoos and cleaning products; they are the reason that foams form when we bath. These have very little to do with the actual cleaning process; what they do is create foam, and in our minds, we equate that with a clean mane of hair. The sulfate free shampoos do not contain sulfates. On the contrary, the best shampoos in this category are infused with anti-oxidants and vitamins which treat hair as it cleans the same.

Volumizing conditioners: Volumizing conditioners thicken and improve the volume of hair, giving it body and bounce. It is absolutely essential to use it on thin hair. This type of hair has to be conditioned properly to carry a style well.

Hair regrowth products: These can be used when you find that the problem of hair thinning is weighing on your confidence. The best in class products come with key FDA approved ingredients that have been clinically proven to deal with the problem of hair loss. Some of the products are formulated keeping a woman's bio-chemistry in mind. The keranique hair rejuvenation system is one of the most promising hair products for women; it contains two percent Minoxidil which has been shown to help in hair loss and regrowth of hair.

Some changes in the lifestyle and diet can help you deal with the problem of thinning of hair. Take a proper diet comprising vitamins A, C, D and Omega 3 Fatty Acids. While using hair dryers, curling irons and hair straighteners, take special care not to damage your hair. Take adequate amounts of water to keep your system hydrated. Exercise regularly to keep your body fit. These steps would help improve the condition of your hair, whether the hair fall is due to aging, pregnancy, poor nutrition, stress, hormonal changes or scalp infections.
