Considering the shocking number of swimming pool related deaths that happen each year, it always surprises me just how many people still do not employ swimming pool covers. Although many people complain that they don't want to have to open and close said covers each time they want to take a swim, that argument doesn't really apply during the Winter when it is too cold to swim anyway. Should you be considering purchasing a swimming pool cover, even just for the Winter, I will now outline the advantages of doing so.

A Nicer Looking, Cleaner Pool Area

Most people don't bother to get their swimming pool professionally serviced during the Winter. After all, they won't be using it, therefore why waste the money? The problem with this approach however is that after a few weeks, swimming pools can start to look pretty horrible. Never is this more the case than during Autumn when the leaves falling from the trees seem to be aiming specifically at your pool. Swimming pool covers solve this problem by keeping your pool covered and as such offering a clean, solid surface for you to look at rather than a swimming pool full of leaves and debris.

Less Work Once the Summer Arrives

Another related advantage of swimming pool covers is that when the Summer arrives once again, you will have a lot less work to do before you can go swimming. Rather than having a swimming pool that has collected debris for a number of months, you can quickly sweep your pool cover and roll it back up. Your swimming pool will be spotless and to take a swim, all you will have to do is fill it with water.

Savings on Maintenance and Pool Services

Although, winter safety covers are not exactly cheap, you are likely to find that in the long run they actually pay for themselves. In the very least, they save you having to hire somebody to clean your pool at the end of the Winter. There is then the fact that an uncovered pool can easily get damaged when left empty for a number of months. When you consider the significant cost of a swimming pool, it certainly makes sense to keep it protected.

The Matter of Safety

Regardless of whether you choose to leave the water in your pool during the Winter or not, having such a large hole in your garden is a major safety risk. Although it is full swimming pools that are responsible for the majority of pool related deaths during Winter, the drop from the surface to the bottom can also easily lead to injuries when a pool is empty. Winter safety covers ensure that nobody can fall into your pool whether it is full or not. Although the likelihood of somebody falling in is certainly small, can you really afford to take the risk. And if you have children, chances are that the peace of mind that a swimming pool cover will offer you is worth the price alone.
