Car Insurance Quote Comparisons Need Homework Too! by George Lewis

Article published on April 27th 2012 | Insurance

When you are hunting for cheap car insurance in Toronto (like most of us here in Canada, who have been beleaguered by the rising costs of insurance), you would do well by starting with comparison of quotes and policies online. A lot of online portals are now offering this opportunity for individuals wishing to sharpen their wits regarding car insurance in Toronto before purchasing or renewing a policy.

However, even though the comparisons of quotes online sound like a cakewalk, it usually is not – unless you know the tips and tricks that veteran brokers hold as trade secrets. Well, we cannot spill those secrets here for you, but we can sure point out some handy tips that will keep your homework for comparing auto insurance quotes online at the top of your game!

• Multiple companies in the same city might not offer the same range of prices/ premium rates. Therefore, it is in your favor to ask for the quotes on car insurance in Toronto from different firms for the very same make or model of your car and then judge accordingly. A lot of people try and generalize auto coverage policies, equating them with home insurance or commercial insurance rates, thus ending up with bloated or inadequate cover than what would have been ideal.

• When looking for new insurance policies, do not forget to compare the costs of renewing your existent coverage package with the ones that you are looking at as potential defection destinations. You may be dissatisfied with costs your firm is charging, but with recent upheavals of the compensation and premium rate structure, you might do better to stick with the existent firm and score loyalty points as rebates off your premiums than risk buying a fairly new policy in a rush.

• When online, do not only trust your own intuition when looking for a great deal on cheap car insurance in Toronto. Ask for professional advice, as most brokers and firms offer “live” counsel online. These veteran brokers will be able to give you an insight on which policies or coverage amounts are mandatory for the kind of car you have and that correlates with your driving record and credit score. This way, you are prepared for any surprises sprung at you by a policy tweak later on as you try and seal the deal with the shortlisted insurance brokers in the city!

• When looking for auto insurance in Toronto, speak to your friends, family and colleagues too. People who have had recent renewals for their insurance policies can help you sort out the complexities involved in this, and can also offer you a direct comparison as far as credit scores and driving records/blemishes are concerned.

Car insurance in Toronto often turns into an experience of sour grapes, but only for people who have not done their research right. And speaking of research, it starts right at the comparison of quotes online – and we just gave you a head-start on the same!
