In order to obtain success kids should be creative, collaborative, and passionate about what they're learning. In schools students are taught to read books and acquire knowledge from the works of great authors. Simply reading of books is not adequate for education. So the students are also taught how to write and express their own ideas in a good form and in different languages. With this objective school magazines are published. They contain a collection of articles, poems, stories and plays. They are written mainly by the students and sometimes by teachers and the alumni. In fact, young talent finds its first exposure through this medium and magazines are generally published annually.

There are various factors in schools that contribute to the proper development of the children. Starting from the school library to the sanitation facilities available there, everything impacts a child's growth. Modern day schools have well stocked libraries where the kids can enjoy the literary works of great writers and authors of the past. No one can deny the role of school libraries, but providing an insight into the world isn't sufficient. Children also need to express their feelings, ideas and thoughts to the world.

A school magazine is a great way of encouraging students to write and put their inner feelings in front of the world. It is a historical document that presents the growth of the school. It is very important for the present generation to know about their history. So it's a useful means of informing the students about the school's glorious traditions and cultures. Writing doesn't come only from practicing it, but needs a lot of reading. A school magazine comprises of various sections that include editorials, poetry, articles, camera clicked photos, portraits made by school children and some other interesting sections.

There are also sections in those magazines on which the pictures of the school toppers are put. It's a great way of positively encouraging children towards achieving high grades in their academics. Children may have different interest areas and may show great craftsmanship on that particular area. A school journal caters to the taste of every kind of student. Besides articles on different topics like science, arts, music, or literary works, a school journal contains information regarding different events organized by the school from time to time. When students see their names and pictures on these journals for their achievements in different areas, they also get joyfully engaged in different activities.

A school may publish a monthly, quarterly, half-yearly or yearly magazine. But these magazines aren't like the general ones. They are specially meant for students of the respective schools. Both teachers and the students can contribute their works in the school publication. The authorities divide the students into different groups and make them in charge of different sections of the school publication. There some may take care of the contents of the publication, while others may create the layout for that. Thus it's a joint venture that teaches the children how to work in a group to accomplish a particular task.
