French classes should stress on improving your pronunciations: Learning French pronunciation is a key to speaking French fluently. It must be one point your French language trainer should focus on. To be able to pronounce French properly one needs more practice. Alphabets in French are same as the English ones but letters are pronounced differently. Make sure you practice pronouncing the words and sentences daily. There are also a few exceptions to the rules of pronunciation that you will need to know when you learn to speak French. For example, in words that begins with "œin-œthe" the nasal sound is only used if these letters are followed by a consonant which is possible only if you join language classes.

Your French classes should make your base strong: The alphabets are considered as a base for learning any new language. French uses the 26 letters of the alphabet plus a few "add-ons": accents on vowels (Â, Ã, etc....) or cedilla (Ç). There are four French accents for vowels and one accent for a consonant. It is very important to know these "add-on" accents besides the original alphabets to improve your French. There are four accents in French. E.g., "tudiant" (student) is an accent aigu Â´ (acute accent) which can be used only on "Ê" (E). To learn French your French grammar should be perfect: French grammar is quite easy to learn and is also really important. Understanding French grammar will also help you in everyday life when you start speaking French. Nouns, personal pronouns (pronoms personnels), articles (d'finis and ind'finis), verbs, adjectives, clauses, adverbs are all used in French like in English. But there is a lot of difference in them. For example; French adjectives change to agree in gender and number with the nouns that they modify, which means there can be up to four forms of each adjective:

Adjective: joli (pretty)

Masculine singular joli

Feminine singular jolie

Masculine plural jolis

Feminine plural jolies
