A Couple of Interesting Computer Games for Your Toddlers by Cody

Article published on March 2nd 2012 | Mobile Phones

Most people refer to the present period as the Internet era. No wonder the online activities are just endless. Literally, the Internet is a virtual world of entertainment. You get to enjoy a lot of activities like gaming, watching movies, surfing for some useful information, online shopping, fund transfer, and what not! And the interesting thing is note is that it is not only the adults who are soaked in the virtual world of entertainment but also the little ones. Yes, these days, kids and toddlers are also in the thick of actions. When I see the children of this age, I get a feeling that they are much smarter and quick than those a couple of decades back. Has to be true! With the advancement in technology the lifestyle has also changed drastically.

Talking about kids and their interests, one activity they all love doing is playing the computer games. The stationary activity gives them so much joy even when they start playing the games for the first time. One big advantage of allowing the kids to play the computer games is that they get a good exposure to the computer skill at a very young age itself. So it is a fun way of getting introduced to the computer world. There are a multitude of games on the computer. You have a lot of games online and offline. While the offline games are ideal for the beginners the online games are much more advanced and exciting to play. Thankfully these days you have the services of popular high-speed Internet connections such as the one powered by AT&T U-verse, so that you don't even have to wait for the game to buffer while you are on-the-go. The games can be of various genres and themes. There are adventure games, racing games, puzzle games, arcade games, sports games and a lot more like these. Though there are thousands of games available on the Internet, I would like to describe in brief about a couple of exciting games that any toddler would love to play.

Musical Instruments Game

This is an interactive game with music as its main theme. In this game, there are a few animals posing with different music instruments waiting to be clicked on by the mouse button in your toddler's hand. When clicked, they produce different music that is fun to listen. So a game like this allows your child to listen keenly to the music. This helps to improve the listening skills and develops the concentration level of your kids as they are keenly engaged and immersed in a world of joy. Increase the volume of the speaker and let your child click on each instrument armed by the cute animals. He/she will definitely enjoy the animals play the music instruments like musicians on the stage.

Super Duper Dolphin

Is your child not eating food? Is he adamant to eat? Then here is a fun game that you can introduce him to and divert his focus and be a good boy! The Super Duper Dolphin is a wonderful game for the little ones. This game involves a cute intelligent dolphin that performs some nice-to-watch tricks when it is being fed by none other than your child. Yes, let your child click on the mouse button for the food to be thrown to the dolphin. There is a basket full of small fish just at a sighting distance to the dolphin. Once you click on the basket, the fish will be thrown and the dolphin will perform various tricks to catch each fish. Thus, you can feed your child while he is immersed in joy watching the dolphin eat its food. You may count the number of fish fed to the dolphin and educate your child about the numbers. So this is one good way to develop the creativity and educational skills of your child. Like these, there are a lot of other games on the Internet. You may introduce your child to the games that you feel are very interactive. This is one good way to help increase the creativity skills of your child.
