HTC T328w Smartphone to Be Launched in China Market by John Henry

Article published on March 30th 2012 | Mobile Phones

According to some fresh rumours, HTC is going to launch T328w which is a cheap dual-SIM device, in the Chinese market. The gadget comprises of a plenty of great features for the users of the recent time as per the demands of today's users. It runs on Android 4.0 Ice Cream Sandwich and HTC Sense UI 4.0, but the hardware used in it is quite outdated, which is a Qualcomm MSM7227A SoC with 1GHz single-core processor, Adreno 200 GPU and 512MB RAM.

Moreover, some other specifications can also be witnessed in this gadget. It has a 4-inch Super-LCD WVGA display for crystal clear images. Besides, good quality pictures can be taken via 5 MP snapper of the device. It also has LED flash for the situations, when you think that light is not enough for shooting the good quality pictures. The 5 MP camera may not be good for the people who are habitual of using 8 MP or 12 MP shooters. But, still today there are a lot of people for whom it is a blossom. The quality of pictures taken through this snapper is more than better for the laypersons.

Entertainment also seems to be necessary for the users of today. Media player and Beats audio support are the features for entertainment. You can have fun on the move, and can use your spare time under the rhythms of songs. You get 4 GB internal storage space in the device in order to store images, videos, music files etc. Today, there are several devices that provide 32 or 64 GB storage space. In that comparison 4 GB space looks nothing, but still there are the people for whom it is enough.

Moreover, you get various connectivity options like Bluetooth connectivity and USB port. Bluetooth facilitates you transferring the data wirelessly among the gadgets in a certain range. Via USB port, two devices can be connected with each other with the help of wires. Options to connect internet also come available in the gadget. If you are at the Wi-Fi hotspots then you can use Wi-Fi feature inside. This option is helpful for connecting internet also in the situation if some of you or your friend has wireless router at home. At other places, network providers can help you in connecting internet with the help of GPRS. It is being rumoured that the HTC T328w will be available at 2000 Chinese Yuan which is equivalent to £240. But, the information about the availability has not been revealed as yet.
