Tips for Visualizing by Jane Thomson

It can feel very frustrating when you hear of so many success stories of people who achieve their dreams using visualization. Why? Because in theory it sounds so simple, but you can run into so many obstacles when you try to make it happen. Below you will discover two easy but powerful ways to eliminate these barriers and make your mind work for you.

Understand the principle behind the Law of Attraction.

You hear a lot about the law of attraction these days and how you can manifest riches just by the power of thought. Have you tried it? If so, youâ€™ve probably noticed that it doesnâ€™t quite work that way. Hereâ€™s a tip that will get you better results. Forget the idea that your thoughts create reality.

The truth is that energy creates your reality. What you think about doesnâ€™t expand because thereâ€™s simply not enough energy in a thought to make much happen. Pour your whole mind, heart and soul into your dream, and then you will start to see results. The more energy you put in, the better and faster results you will get. Thatâ€™s why visualization works well with your true hearts desires, but not so well with things you only think you should want.

You must understand how to detach from your outcome.

Detachment is a concept where there is a lot of confusion when it comes to visualizing your goals. How can you detach from something you want so badly? Luckily, thatâ€™s not what you need to do. You need to detach from two things. Detach from â€œhowâ€• you will reach your goal. You can focus on your endpoint success image and how you feel imagining that you have already achieved it.

Then you leave it alone and let your Subconscious mind decide how your goals will come about. When you understand this and can do it, youâ€™ll have a sense of freedom like never before.

Obstacles that once seemed impossible now seem like stepping stones. Youâ€™ll feel free to make mistakes and learn and grow from them.

The second thing you need to detach from is your current reality. Imagine youâ€™re trying to find a new job, but right now youâ€™re stuck in a job you hate.

What are you focusing on? Youâ€™re focusing on what you donâ€™t want, and that means youâ€™re just to get more of it. All of those feelings of frustration and anxiety are only going to create more agony for you.

Do whatever it takes to feel just a little better, and youâ€™ll find the power to turn your situation around. Summon all of the peace and feelings of contentment that you can possibly feel right now. Focus on your joy, and thatâ€™s what will expand. Youâ€™ll begin to act differently. In fact, your entire aura will change and youâ€™ll notice and respond to opportunities youâ€™ve never noticed before.

Keep these tips in mind when you are setting new goals and working toward them. They are simple, but very effective in keeping you on the right track.
