How to Choose Sleigh Beds Frame by Julia Roger

Article published on May 30th 2012 | Shopping

Are you planning a wooden sleigh bed in your bedroom? sleigh beds appear like a sleigh and have curvy headboard and footboard at both ends. The process of choosing sleigh bed frame starts with the size of frame. A queen size mattress means a bigger bed size. Generally frames are designed to accommodate one particular size of mattress and it is important to make careful selection.

The next step is to choose the frame material and it depends on your requirement. In most of the cases sleigh beds are made up of wood but there are some other materials that you can choose from. A steel or iron frame can add a difference and great aesthetic look to your bedroom. Generally wood frames are costly and their price depends on the quality of wooden material used in the frame. Hard woods are naturally beautiful and have high durability with great appearance. But keep in mind that these are really expensive and heavy, so if you tend to move it often, choose a light pine wood itself. Softwood sleigh beds look really great and they are much more susceptible to damage than the regular beds.

You have to consider the décor of your home or the décor that you are planning to have in your home. In short you need to consider the size, design and style of your wooden sleigh bed in advance. The color should complement your room's décor and it should not be against the overall design of your bed. Above all of these factors, make sure that whether sleigh bed supports the mattress well with special support frame. You need to consider the box spring your mattress and choose a wooden frame for your sleigh bed accordingly. Make a sophisticated choice before choosing your bed.
