Winter has recoiled in obscurity, as spring has unfolded itself in the new year. Hence, leaving behind the old memories of the past year, men and women are looking up to the new-style trends of 2012. A major evolution has taken place in the jewellery section as new designs of jewel pieces are coming into being. As females are already gazing at their trusty crystal balls, trying to predict the jewelry style this year, here is sneak-peak at the upcoming styles.

Since, Spring is ideally the season when new flowers start to bloom in the foliage, it also marks a new beginning in the fashion industry as well. Layered chains dominate the ramp this season in the jewellery section. Floral and feathered style is in full swing this season. Mingled with a retrospect into the older styles of 1950, this year's jewelry trend is going to be stuffed with floral, buds and petal arrangements. While sterling silver, bright gold and priceless platinum will still be in trend as ever, they will be encrusted with flower designs. Precious stones like diamond, ruby, emerald, etc. will also be an in-thing this year, as their addition will only make the designs all the more ornate.

Hence, elaborate jewellery drafts are expected to steal the show in 2012. Natural themes will also rule feminine body this year. Jewelries made of recyclable materials will be a strong and potential entry in the fashion industry. This is expected to evoke the environmental consciousness among the users. Talking about the jewelry, regular and rare geometric shapes will be in highlight all this year. Box chokers to modernistic pieces will grace the feminine beauty as suited to their respective choices. Another new entry in the jewel designs this year is the oceanographic theme.

With designs and patterns resembling natural elements related to the sea can be the show-stealer in parties and public occasions. For instance, you can don an earpiece shaped like a sea-horse, conch, shell, etc. to embrace an all-natural look. Hence, use of stones like pearl, jade, sapphire, emerald, lapis, tourmaline, etc. that reflect something of the ocean can be a thing to flaunt in the new year. Going by the jewellery trend of this year, the color blue is the color of the year. Hence, choosing stones like emmolite, spectrolite, agate, lapis lazuli, sapphire, opal, etc. can help you do justice to the cool, blue fad of the year.

However, some fashionistas love to create their own style statements leaving others to follow, instead of following the one set by others. Hence, keeping with the theme of water, you can always experiment. Since Nature is the keyword in jewelry this year, try to stick to styles that contain water elements and floral inclusions. However, designing a piece of jewel is entirely a matter of individual perception, and hence, should not be influenced.
