In Colorado, Trout Fishing is considered part of life. One of the most interesting aspects of fly fishing in Colorado is that once a year they allow a Free Fishing Weekend! , for both the locals and tourists across the great state which takes place from June 2 and June 3 each calendar year. Another great benefit that families can enjoy is Introduction to Fishing courses that are found all across the state. So if you find yourself contemplating a trip because of lack of experience to no worries most if not all fishing courses are specifically designed for beginners. One of the most beautiful scenic trout fishing experiences that would make a great selling point to family and friends is visiting Lake City, Colorado. Locals live their lives by the simple idea that Trout Fishing is not just casting and bringing home some lunch, but instead is being outside with the breeze lightly lifting your hair on a warm nice sunny day and simply enjoying life!

Throughout the state there thousands beyond thousands of miles of water streams that stretch across lakes, reservoirs, and streams; between 6,000-7,000 miles is a ball-park figure. Colorado unlike other of its neighboring states offers anglers the opportunity to catch a vast array of specimen. There are more than 30 plus different species which is most famous species being the "Colorado's Trout". A quick Google search online for "Colorado Trout" and more than 10 different specimen sites appear with full descriptions of the specimen; strongly recommended for those first-time families.

A favorite past time experience that locals enjoy is bringing home Trout and making some appetite pleasing "Mack Cakes". For those who are not too familiar with this culinary Endeavour they closely resemble crab cakes but packed with much more flavor and excitement! But if that particular dish does not fit in your busy Trout fishing schedules there are alternatives such as Mac Fillets, Asian Honey Lake Trout, Sweet and Sour Trout, and Creamy Trout chowders are some that can be easily remembered. Colorado s Trout has its own and unique taste that cannot be replicated anywhere else in the world. Most Trout have a similar taste and consistency of Salmon, but in Colorado's lets just say its more like buttery Salmon taste. As we all know that all food taste better with butter not just Trout!

One particular activity that I urge those serious and experience Trout fishing individuals who have the tendency to consistently catch some serious Trout is Trout Taxonomy. It is a great way to show off your great fishing skills to those closest to you by displaying those "Great Big Trout!" somewhere in your adventurous home. There are more than 100 different organizations, networks, and agencies that are directly or indirectly involved with Colorado's Trout fishing tourism. So for those who are not yet fully convinced about the Trout catching experience feel free to do a quick 10 second search on such organizations' and how they can better inform on the benefits and outright fun that fellow Anglers love.
