Backdrops and drapes are a great way of decorating a reception room. These ways of giving an elegant look to the location where the event is taking place are very popular among people. Not only for wedding parties can these be used but also for any kind of occasion especially if the occasion is taking place at night. Long fallen drapes give a dramatic look to the place changing the whole ambience of the place. This kind of decoration will make the event memorable for a lifetime.

Backdrops are basically long curtains of fabric which can be draped on the walls. These are affordable still attractive. If the walls of the wedding venue are not so attractive and are supposed to be hidden, draping them with backdrops can be a great idea to do so. This can be done in numerous ways depending upon the liking of the hosts of the party and the theme of the wedding. Starlight backdrops can add the glitzy effect and make the place light up even more. An arch or a canopy at the upper end of the drape decorated with flowers and greenery gives a refreshing look to the place.

Tulle bows matching with the bride's dress can be attached to the backdrops and the furniture to give a magical look to the place. The unwanted pillars that are hindering the movement of people can be decorated by using these tulle bows to become a center of attraction for the guests. Lighting arrangements can also be incorporated with these decorations. Small decorating lights can be wrapped around the pillars or made to hang along the walls. Sometimes low intensity blurred lights are used to be placed behind the drapes to emit a soothing light. There is a varied range of fabrics available for making these backdrops in terms of color and texture like net, organza, linen, synthetic fiber, etc. You can get them customized as per your choice if you don't like the decorations offered by the hotel and catering services.

Important places where most of the wedding photographs are clicked like the entrance to the reception area, the cake cutting table and the wedding ceremony area can be highlighted by using such special decoration arrangements. Draping makes a beautiful background for pictures. There is no limit to the creativity that can be used in creating wedding decoration backdrops. You can use any kind of flowerings and lighting arrangements. You can also mix more than one colors to make the decorations blend into the environment.

Brides have been dreaming about this special event of their life since childhood and making different plans to make the event perfect. The decoration of the wedding venue is as important as the wedding dress of the bride. An elegant and refreshing look of the place is appreciated by all. Backdrops and drapes are irresistible ways to create an elegant atmosphere at the place. These are affordable and versatile that can be altered according to one's own wish. These can also be stored after the event is over to be used for other important events. This leaves no reason why these should not be used.
